FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

THURSDAY, Aug. 25. The general upward movement of stocks was resumed to-day with a heavier volume of trading and appreciably greater price advances. There was little in the news developments of the day to influence sentiment; in fact, the most important development, the early and radical advances in wheat prices, was apparently without the least effect. At the close of the grain markets wheat had fallen to yesterday's level, while stocks at the close were somewhat under the high points, although firm. With the exception of this closing recession, which was of slight proportions, and its counterpart late in the morning session, both movements following profit taking, the market was consistently strong. Professional activity was responsible for the sudden movements in usually inactive stocks, and to a less extent the advances in many quarters were due to the same initiative Of outside buying there were again no signs, nor, on the other hand, was there any pressure of stocks. The laggards in to-day's advances were Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. Both stocks rose fractionally at one time, but at the close were practically unchanged. The early advances in the grain markets were without influence on the granger stocks. St. Paul in particular neglected the course of wheat prices and advanced sharply to the high point for the year, holding most of its gain. Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Illinos Central, Atchison, Missouri, Kansas and Texas, Texas Pacific and St. Louis Southwestern rose sharply on corn and cotton prospects, in the course of the group of Southern roads proper. Baltimore and Ohio. Pennsylvania. New York Cent al. Reading and Delaware and Hudson scored advances of a point or more, Reading making a new high record for the year. The trading in Delaware and Hudson represented, apparently, a continuation of the investment buying of that stock. In the industrial list the United States Steel issues were firm and advanced moderately, while other shares in this quarter participated fractionally in the upward swing. The traction issues were irm and rather inactive. In the grain markets there was a resump tion of the recent extensive speculation, and in the early trading prices for wheat advanced sharply, the movement being attributed to the possible appearance of cold weather in the Northwest and a decreased estimate of the yield in Manitoba. The gain was lost in the later trading, however, when heavy realizing, at the expense of smaller speculators, undoubtedly, drove prices down to the level obtaining at Wednesday's close. Corn followed wheat in the advances, but fell further at the close, prices here being off nearly 1 cent a bushel. A widely credited trade authority's estimate of 2,500,000,000 bushels as the corn yield, barring, of course, early serious frost, was not without influence on corn prices. Further transfers of currency to Chicago to-day, along with an initial shipment to Buenos Ayres, seemed to put the outward bound movement well on its way. The banks are also beginning to ship funds direct to the interior. These movements have as yet had no effect on the money News items of interest to-day were the July report of the Jersey Central, whose sharp supervision of operating expenses yielded in large part the net gain of $98,000 for the month, and the weekly statement of the Bank of England, which again increased its total reserve by $5,000,000. The rate of discount was not changed.

upon the market. An estimate that Houston would receive, during the month of August between 80,000 and 90,000 bales was absolutely disregarded, first, because even this amount will be insufficient to meet requirements for August shipment, and, second, because, as we pointed out several weeks ago, they will contain something like 25,000 bales of rejectiens, threshed cotton, &c., which has to be moved out from compress points before September 1, so as to secure a rebate of the local freights paid from the small towns into the compress towns. Owing to the character of this cotton, it might as well not be in existence, for it is of no use to exporters, who are so anxious to fill their August and early September engagements."
